A Short History of the Church

The first Methodist Church in Federalsburg, Md. was organized in 1785 in the home of Jacob Charles, according to the Rev. F. C. MacSorely, an early minister of the church, as quoted in "Short History of the Methodist Episcopal Church."

According to Rev. E. C. Hallman, in his "History of Union Methodist Church", three Methodist Societies (the remnant of the Thomas Layton Society; the Isaac Charles Society and the Thomas Garretson Society) probably united to form the Union Methodist Church. It is thought that they built a chapel, but this has not been documented.

The first church building was erected about 1815, on land deeded to the Trustees of Union Chapel by Eccleston Brown and wife, Mary. It was a simple frame building, and stood within the bounds of the present cemetery. This original church building was removed and a new church was erected in 1850 (see the cover picture), on land adjoining the initial site deeded to the church by Jacob Charles and wife. This building underwent many changes over the years and evolved into the present church. It started out as a simple clapboard structure, with a steeple and belfry, and the same Palladian style windows that it now has, although without the stained glass. Over the years, it has been enlarged several times, the interior has been re-arranged, and the exterior has gone from the original clapboards to stucco in the late 1920's and then to today's brick veneer. Stained glass windows were installed about 1929.

The following is a historical account entered in register number 3 by the Rev. Thomas E. Terry in 1916:

The first church was located within the bounds of what is now the cemetery, the land having been bought from our Eccleston Brown and his wife in 1815. Mr. J. L. Frampton verified that it stood near the center of the present day cemetery midway in a north-south line, a little east of center and fronted toward the South. A frame building was used until 1850 when the present building was erected and the old building sold and removed about 100 yards south to the East side of Main Street for use as a carpenter shop. It was later resold and part of it was moved to the rear of and attached to the residence where Bro. Charles M. Davis lived (1913) and is still part of the architecture of the building. The present church building was built on ground bought from Jacob Charles and his wife in 1901 during the pastorate of Rev. Thomas S. Holt. The church was repaired and enlarged by the addition of the present lecture room, at a cost of $3375.00 and was re-opened for service Jan 29, 1902. On that occasion Rev. C. L. Meade of Hoboken, NJ, Rev. W. L. White, of the Wilmington Conference and former pastor of the charge, were present and assisted our pastor in the services of the day and in the many measures to pay the indebtedness. During the year 1912 the church building was repaired and a primary Sunday School room was added in the rear of the lecture room.

The church was originally part of the Dorchester Circuit. The parsonage of which was located in East New Market and at times was connected with the East New Market, Frienship, St. Paul, Galestown, Cokesbury, Nichols, Harmony, Bethlehem, Ristin, Wheatley and Christ Churches until 1904 when it became a station under Rev. J. S. Holt.

In the early history of the church the Circuit preacher, because of the extent of the circuit could not preach in Federalsburg on Sundays, but preached here on Tuesday morning and the Sabbath. Preaching was for the most part done by Rev. Paul Conaway, who was also one of the original trustees of the church, and Rev. Joseph L. Kinney the local preacher. These were holy men of God who labored with great acceptability and were immensely useful to the church and the community. No account of other pastors in charge of this work exists for the years 1815 through 1859. Since then the following were in charge:

1859-60	Thomas W. McClary	1889-90	John W. Easling

About the Records

In the early days, the church was a part of a large circuit, and later became the head of a smaller circuit (which at various times included Chestnut Grove, Friendship, Smithville and others). The earliest records we have begin in 1859 when the Rev, T. W. McClary was the officiating minister.

In the 1970's, the original record books were sent to the Maryland Hall of Records in Annapolis, where they are kept in a safe, climate-controlled environment. They have been microfilmed, and are now kept in the Church Office, under lock and key, and at the Hall of Records. Some of the records on microfilm are not legible. The record book entries, particularly register number 1, are also difficult to read. Some of the writing (all in longhand) has faded with the passage of time; and some of the ministers had handwriting that is hard to decipher. The transcribed microfilm records have all been checked using the original record entries. Uncertainties in the interpretation of individual names are indicated using question marks. Question marks have also been used to indicate a missing month or day of a marriage, birth or baptism in a partial date record. In some instances the dates were not recorded. These are so indicated. The following compilation was performed to preserve the original records and to make them might be more accessible to interested individuals. A few abbreviations have been made to preserve space or to enable data to fit on a single page. The Mode of Baptism column in Reg. #2, 'S' means baptism by sprinkling. The adult/infant column has the following abbreviations: I = infant, Ls = lass, Ld = lad, A = adult and C = child.
